“International Duo Saves Concert Tour after Destination Overhaul”

Czech violinist, Julie Svěcená, and British-American cellist, Cameron Grimes, will be touring the UK after their plans to tour America fell through. The pair recently finished their studies at the Royal Academy of Music in London and were set to make their debut duo tour in the USA this September; however, after visa issues arose, an executive decision was made to postpone the USA concert tour until next year. With only six weeks left before the scheduled date of departure, Cameron planned a UK tour from scratch. Together, the duo will now make their debut tour across the UK, performing Czech, German, and English music in historic cathedrals, churches, and other venues.
